

So, as the directions are to write this analysis as if I was writing it to my boss or supervisor, I will do something like that, however I will try and tone it down a bit. Mostly because my immediate boss has gotten to the point where he lets me do what I want because I am amazing at my job, so its just an annoyance he has to deal with.

For example- here are some pictures of me extorting my work that I did because I wanted some snacks.

And if you want me to write like I am talking to his boss, who is the COO of Providence...

That doesn't really work well either as well, the reports I give him are filled with the memes just like the ones I submit with my homework.

(I got my snacks mind you ^^)

I wish I was kidding, but I am not.... My last process improvement report that I made for him included these gems:

oor space utilization when it comes to how our drawers are set up.

So, as I stated, I will do my best to tone it down some. However, being able to speak as if I am talking to them will kind of help with this analysis. But, I guess also to let you know that all the weird images and things I put on stuff, is just me, and I have that mannerism no matter who I am speaking with =]

Covid hit, my strategy was put to the test, and it w many MAs who are STILL not doing this.

 - So, let's play a game: which room i of our patient's shoes. You walk int questions and then grabs their pul places it on your finger. Then grabs where do they place it? Does it go l

f t

→ So, I know that was long, but in all f to here. I guess implementing i would be viable but one by one probably have i clinic a little mc

The waste of space makes my avocado sad. Please, think of the poor avocado, and let's fix this.

Oh no, this thing is thick...
What are the odds that she didn't talk too much?

